Be Vigilant

Perennial vigilance is the price of liberty. This is a maxim true in all walks of life, but it is especially true in the lives of Western Canada farmers during these admittedly trying years. Farmers with years of experience in these Prairie Provinces are coming to understand conditions and well know what should be done, and can be done, better than anyone else, but the fact must be recognized that here in the West hundreds, yes thousands, of men are engaging in the work of agriculture who are more or less new to this country and have not the minimum that experience of conditions here which will enable them to combat adverse conditions with the largest possible measure of success. It may, therefore, not be out of place, and, indeed, of some value, to emphasize one or two factors which are essential to success in this country.

At the time of writing agricultural conditions in Western Canada are distinctly favorable; more favorable in fact than they have been for some years. According to mid-June reports from all parts of the West the growing crop is most promising. Alberta has more moisture than in any season for five or six years past, and both Saskatchewan and Alberta have been visited with copious rains over large areas, with the result that all grain is making splendid growth. The reduction in the acreage sown to wheat in some sections is fairly well offset by increases in other grains.

But let it be repeated, eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, and liberty for the Western farmer at the present time means security from the many dangers which threaten the growing crop. Some things he cannot prevent, but, for example, that while it is impossible for him to adopt preventive measures, he can provide insurance against them through insurance. The wise man will make such provision. If his crop escapes, he can well afford to pay the premium; if he suffers heavy losses, he is the gainer and all is not lost.

In recent years the West has suffered enormously from the grasshopper pest. Experience has now shown how to successfully combat this scourge, and preparations for so doing have been made by Governments and municipalities on a large scale. It remains for the farmer to act individually and collectively, to unite their forces and through the most effective co-operation with official agencies fight this scourge to a finish. As the motto of the Rotary Club says: "It can be done." It remains for the farmers during a comparatively short period to put up a fight. It is a fight which, if waged successfully this year, will likewise bring results in improved conditions in the years to come.

Thus there is the weed pest. It, too, must be fought. Unless it is, it will conquer in the end, and, unfortunately, it is not merely the shiftless, lazy, indifferent farmer who suffers from it, but his industrious neighbor as well, and the community as a whole. In districts where the late, wet spring made cropping of the land impossible, farmers should this year be unrelenting warfare on weeds, and the neglectful farmer in this respect should be brought to book by municipal authorities. If the individual farmer who allows his land to run to weeds suffers alone, it would be serious enough, but when, through his slothfulness and neglect whole districts are threatened he should and must be made to act in the public interest if he will not in his own.

As the season advances, and the grains and grasses ripen and dry, all possible safeguards against fire should be provided. Last year property loss in Canada from fire totalled over $45,000,000, or more than $5.00 for every man, woman and child in Canada, not to speak of the even more serious loss of life and others injured in the fires. In these Prairie Provinces is a serious thing because such a large proportion of the population live in rural parts where it is well nigh impossible to provide efficient fire-fighting appliances. Prevention is better than cure, especially in the case of fire where too frequently there can be no cure. It is a fight which, if waged successfully, let it be repeated, that in the matter of freedom from fire, eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.

Parliament and legislatures, spurred on by the farmer representatives and organizations, are struggling with the grain marketing problem, seeking to devise ways and means whereby the farmer will receive an adequate monetary reward for his toil and husbandry, but their best efforts will hardly be as substantial results as can be achieved for many individual farmers by themselves through the taking of absolutely necessary precautions and then by preventive losses against which legislation will not protect them. Constant vigilance, and the taking of simple, common-sense precautions for a few short summer and early fall months may easily result in larger gains than all the legislation in the world can provide, and without which all legislation is futile.

Modern Study of Geography

Children Are Real Places to Children of Today

It is scarcely necessary to expound the power of the news of the day in taking the reader to strange places and strange scenes. In later years it has been made quite plain to us, and indeed an alert mind is required to keep up with the rapid evolution of political geography. Many things have occurred to prove that geography is a necessary part of the equipment of citizenship. That the deplorable habits of the British Empire concerned our affairs we have imagined; but who had any notion of the significance of the Prizet marches or the Island of Wrenge to the modern world. The children of today are more fortunate. Geography study is concerned with realities. Children will still in their kindergarten are making relief maps of their native district. The foreign countries of which they hear are not merely "name places," but real places with real people sending them real things and taking real things in return. Geography is a science nowadays, and teachers of today have brought this science out of the clouds of abstraction to living things—Modern Gazette.

HEART WOULD BEAT LIKE A TRIP HAMMER

Heart trouble has of late years become very prevalent. Sometimes a pain catches you in the region of the heart, now and then your heart skips beats, palpitates, throbs, or beats with such rapidity and violence you think it is going to burst.

HEART AND NERVE PILLS

Mr. Chadwick, Delhi, Ont., writes: "I had palpitation of the heart, and the least exercise, such as going up stairs or up a hill, my heart would beat like a trip-hammer and at times I was dizzy-headed and had a sinking sensation as if my time were near."

A friend suggested I try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, so I procured three boxes, and by the time the first one was used I began to improve. In about two boxes and now although in my 60th year I feel like a young zephyrus on a headwind.

BARELY LIVED THROUGH IT

A terrible experience had Edw. J. O'Brien of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., when he writes: "I have been a victim of suffering from Asthma and Catarrh. My nose and throat was often stopped up, and I had disagreeable discharges from my throat. When an attack of coughing came on, it was as if I would have been choked through it. I would pass for breath. Catarrhism made me well."

A Terrific Sea-Change

Hyphenates of United States Have Now Something to Think About

Mr. Hearst's address among the guild of hyphenates must look upon him as best to them forever.

Hardly had he landed from the British ship that carried him to persons. Albeit, this he was taking luncheon with Lucile Lloyd George, and on Monday in Paris he made the following statement:

The English seem to have forgotten their war antagonisms more than any other country and to have set to work more seriously to bring about Europe's reconstruction. With them, apparently when war ends business begins, and they are right."

The admission that the English are right about anything is evidence that Mr. Hearst has suffered a terrific change. Lloyd George must have given him a most potent luncheon. The hyphenates confront the amazing defection of their former spokesman, Hearst, and the evidence that there is a spectacle calculated to fill his dupes with frenzy.—New York Tribune.

I would strongly recommend every mother to have a box in the house." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or direct from a box from The W. Williams Medicine Co., Hixville, Ont.

Slow Trains

The little suburbs of Madville cannot be any stretch of imagination be considered a busy place. The railway upholds the reputation of the village.

A visitor of Madville realized this recently after waiting four hours for an express train. He approached the porter:

"Isn't the train coming soon?" he inquired mildly. Just at that moment a dog came trotting up the line and a glad smile illuminated the porter's face.

"Oh, yes," replied the official: "It'll be getting here now. Here comes the engine driver's dog."

Western Questions Given Unusual Prominence In Session Just Closed

Ottawa.—The first session of the Post-Confederation Parliament of Canada, which closed early June 28, was marked by the appearance of the Progressives as an influential party and the emergence of a fourth or Labor party. The Progressives exercised a controlling influence in many situations during the session, while the two Labor members were active in setting forth their point of view on most of the issues that arose. The fact that the Progressives are predominantly western in membership, coupled with other circumstances in the national assembly, combined to give western questions unusual prominence.

The demand for the Wheat Board was the first big western issue to make itself felt and while the western members did not get all they asked for they did get a chance to try out their remedy within the limits of the constitution. The railway rate question, wrapped up as it was with the Crown West Pass agreement, gave the session a critical wind-up, and on this issue there was a compromise which gave the west low rates on its basic industry while referring other rate reductions to the Railway Commission. Owing to the rush of business through the Commons at the end of the session, the Senate was not able to complete its labors. It asserted its right to criticize by killing a bill to withdraw Federal control from the Lake of the Woods, while in the case of the Canada Temperance Act the Commons had to surrender to the Senate its customary influence on the Commons' amendments to the Criminal Code, accepting some and rejecting others more radical.

Belfast.—The "Big neutral zone" experiment, establishing a five-mile strip of neutral territory in the Fingal and Doherty district of the Ulster Free State border, under a triple agreement by the British, the provisional and northern governments, is made effective, Premier-Sir James Craig, of Ulster, told an interviewer.

Premier Craig said the military took complete control of two and one half miles on either side of the border, the Royal Ulster Constabulary taking one side and the Free State police the other, occupying the other side of the border.

Premier Craig explained that the

Still Hope to Conquer Everest

London.—Pending receipt of a definite announcement from Brig-Gen. Charles Bruce that the attempt to reach the summit of Mount Everest had been abandoned, there seems to be some uncertainty about it, notwithstanding the recent reports from Calcutta. The Daily Telegraph's Calcutta correspondent attributes to the four members of the British expedition who have arrived at Darjeeling, British India, the statement that when they left the camp their leader said that the order of the expedition still cherished hope that a last desperate effort might possibly be successful.

Germans Could Build Long-Planned Tunnel

Minister of Public Works Submits Plan to French Government

Paris.—A huge war reparations plan under which the Germans who reconstruct France and also build the long-planned tunnel under the English Channel has been submitted by the Minister of Public Works, M. Le Troquer, to Premier Poincaré, who has laid it before the French members of the reparations commission. The plan involves the use of German labor and materials to the extent of 20,000,000 francs.

The newspapers publishing the details fully approve the project, declaring that under it Germany might refuse to pay. They assert that if she is able to carry on the construction of railways and telegraph lines in Germany she is able to reconstruct the work-areas in France and also to help build the canal, electric power plants and other works which are needed in France and which are now under partial construction.

Antagonist Ghost Girl Plans Stage Career

Wants to Earn Money to Build New House

Ptarm, N.S.—Mary Ellen Macdonald, Colebrook Mills, Antigonish County, known in connection with a series of mysterious fires and other events which had winter drove her and her grandmothers from the home and brought an investigation by Dr. Franklyn Prince, New York, arrived here to commence a proposed stage tour of Europe and United States.

Dawson Being Deserted

People Flocking to New Mining Camp at Mayo

Vancouver.—Dawson City is fast becoming a deserted town. Hotels and houses are being pulled down and taken to the new mining camp at Mayo, where they are being re-erected and old-time residents of the north predict that Mayo will be a camp of 20,000 persons in the next two years. Everybody is going to Mayo. This is the word that Thomas Greenway, well-known Yukoner and former Mounted Policeman, has sent to friends in this city.

No General Election Before Next Session Announced By Premier

Ottawa.—Sir Louis Borden, Deputy Governor-General, in formally proposing Parliament, reviewed legislation passed during the session, which has closed. The act based on the report of the special committee on transportation costs would "effect immediate substantial reduction of freight rates in a manner which cannot fail to be of far-reaching benefit to all parts of the Dominion," he declared.

Mr. Borden, who had retired from his post, was much to ensure fulfillment of the patriotic purposes they were intended to serve. By amendment to the election laws, full freedom of the franchise had been secured for additional thousands of Canadian women.

Dr. Garland (Progressive), Bow River, asked whether there would be a full session of parliament.

London.—In the House of Commons

Right Hon. Winston Churchill, Colonial Secretary, refused assertions made in the House of Commons that British pressure on the provisional government was responsible for the attacks on the insurgents in Dublin. Mr. Churchill declared the provisional government's decision in no way arose out of the debate in this House. It arose as the result of the further aggressive and assertive action by Sir O'Connor and the insurgents, culminating in the seizure of one of the principal officers of the Irish Government.

The provisional government is solely responsible for the situation. They, so far, have made no communication on the subject. They have declined all offers of assistance from the imperial forces except concerning equipment."

Inactivity of the provisional government in the face of the O'Connor open challenge of its authority had long been a subject of wonder and complaint among the British and Irish friends in the British press and parliament, especially in view of the fact that those favoring the treaty claimed to have 90 per cent. of the Irish electorate behind them.

So soon as Michael Collins and Arthur Griffith had proof of this support, they decided, they believed, no longer and matters were brought to a head by the seizure by the Provisional Government of O'Connell. The first action of the provisional government in sending an ultimatum demanding the surrender of the Provisional Government, the most reliable reports, was in no way influenced by the British Ministry.

The situation has been taken in the debate in the House of Commons and Mr. Churchill's communication to Dublin advising the provisional government to accept its authority, is believed to have been largely an astute move to take the edge off the "dispute" over the government in connection with the assassination of Field Marshal Wilson.

In any case the government came out with flying colors from what had admittedly been a threatening position and events in Dublin will be watched for the future by the treatyists will tend to strengthen the position of the British cabinet in its fight against the opposition in parliament of the "die hard" and Ulster parties. The government, apart from its call to the provisional government to accept its supremacy, which has been deprecated in some quarters here to tend to enhance the difficulty of Michael Collins in dealing with the irregulars, is pursuing a policy of impartiality, and British troops are not taking sides in the struggle to take, any part in the Dublin events.

Some Of The Benefits To The Public From The Cold Storage System

J. A. Ruddle, Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner, says:

The cold storage industry has to contend with much misunderstanding and misinterpretation. It has been the fault of the demagogue and others who ponder to popular prejudice. The general public, getting its information largely from such sources, has been misled as to the proper functions and value of cold storage. There has been much confusion of mind even in certain official circles, and very often the term "cold storage" is used when the reference is to something which is purely a matter of trading, and has really nothing to do with cold storage.

A short time ago we had a somewhat celebrated inquiry into the profits made in the handling of bacon. It had nothing whatever to do with cold storage, and yet the witnesses referred to it day after day in glowing headlines as the cold storage enquiry. There is need for clearing thinking along these lines in order that the people generally may have a better understanding of the relation of the cold storage industry to the trade in food products, and its effect on food supply and prices.

The prejudice against cold storage under two headings is worthy of notice. The first is the belief that cold storage is based on the belief that cold storage is responsible, in some degree at least, for the increased cost of living. While cold storage has been chosen as the scapegoat in connection with extreme prices arising out of the increase of living is not very easy to understand, but it seems to be a fact. There is the conviction, firmly implanted in the mind of the public, that the cold storage of food products inevitably results in deterioration of quality.

Regarding the relation between cold storage and the cost of food products, there is possibly some room for argument, but the broad fact remains that cold storage, by the holding of goods of seasonal production is practically the only means which we have of preserving the surplus in many foods from the period of their production to the period when the production is not equal to the consumption demand. The result is that cold storage on prices is to stabilize, to prevent glut in the market which would drive the price to the point where production becomes unremunerative and ceases, by absorbing the surplus and carrying it forward to the period of scarce production, and thus preventing prices from going as high as they otherwise would. It would be impossible to provide the constant need of population with certain foods during the scarce season of production without cold storage facilities. And there is no difference of opinion as to the benefits of cold storage in the preserving of food products in cold storage or preserving them in the form of canned goods, or in using electric refrigerators to store surplus food at the time of its being harvested until such time as it is required for consumption.

With regard to the belief that cold storage on the quality of food products, I can only say that the very common belief that the quality is actually injured is not justified by the facts of the case. It is undoubtedly true that foods coming out of cold storage are frequently of inferior quality, but that only proves that the quality was inferior when they were put into cold storage. Cold storage will not restore the quality, and it can only be expected to preserve foods in the same condition as received, providing they are held under a proper temperature. It is a general way it is true that the preservative effect of cold storage diminishes in proportion to the extent that deterioration has taken place before the goods are stored. It very often happens that goods are placed in cold storage before they are in the best condition, and the danger of their spoiling. This is, of course, very unfair to cold storage, and such goods should be refused admission.

Good Crop Prospects

Signs Indicate that a Heavy Crop Will Be Harvested This Year

The crop prospects in all three western prairie provinces, viewed at the latter part of June, were never better. If nothing happens within the next few weeks Western Canada may produce the largest crop since that memorable year of 1915 when the grain growers were favored with a bumper crop. At the present time the preliminary survey shows as uniformly satisfactory. Generally speaking, the acreage is well up to former years, though in some districts there may be a slightly less acreage in wheat, but this is made up to a large extent with other grains. The early start in June started in with one of the most intensive heat waves experienced on the prairies in many years, but, fortunately, this soon developed into a quick change to decidedly cool weather, with rain in all provinces, which naturally relieved a tense situation. Since then the growing conditions could not have been more desirable, and all grains are making remarkable progress with a freshness and vigor which could not be excelled. The outlook for a bountiful crop of British Columbia fruit and all kinds is equally as good as the prospects for grain on the prairies—prospect which, if fulfilled, will have a highly important influence on business conditions from one coast to the other in Canada.

Newspaper Tendencies

Change for the Better in Influence of the Press

The presence of the three national leaders, Messrs. King, Meighen and Crean, at the annual convention of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers' Association was in itself a striking proof of the "power of the press," to which one made more or less direct reference. And some very just tributes were paid to the weekly newspaper press by the leaders. Crean, who was made between the weekly and daily papers and their respective spheres. But over all, and in its deeper meaning, there is a change in process, and on the whole it is for the better. Mr. Crean aptly of the daily as furnishing the result of the latest price fight, the details of the most recent murder and also what happens on the Hill.

These are given, it is true, but attention is now directed to the details of the price fight or murder, and, as a result, the constructive news now takes its place on the first page in preference to the newest sensation in crime, and the news story, well written and impartially compiled, is tending more and more to influence public opinion. The responsible newspaper is today directed with the definite aim in view of presenting news and views impartially, and with a full realization of the responsibilities that accompany its production. There are, perhaps, exceptions, but these only three into clearer contrast the newspapers which conscientiously endeavor to be independent, fair and free from tainting influences.—The Ottawa Citizen.

Advantage of Cheap Feed

Canadian Cattle Feed Goes for Market More Cheaply than Dances

Canadian producers have distinct advantages, which should encourage them, though they must recognize the intelligent competition and high standard of the Danish product if progress is to be made. Prof. George E. Day, over fifteen years ago, stated the position very plainly when he wrote:—"The Canadian product is taken by the large English cities, especially London, and customers are found among the well-to-do classes, who are willing to pay a premium for an article of superior quality." At the present time, Canada's most formidable competitor is Denmark. The Danes produce an article of higher average quality than that produced by the Canadians and obtain a higher average price in the London market. The only thing which enables Canada to compete with Denmark, is the fact that Canadians can feed their hogs more cheaply than the Danes, and thus afford to undersell them. The great drawback to Canadian bacon is its lack of uniformity. There are too many breeds of swine in Canada to have uniformity in the quality of bacon, and the sooner Canadian realizes this fact, and makes a special effort to produce exactly what the market demands, the better it will be for their trade, because there is no reason why Canada should be expected to grow as Denmark. If her farmers go about their business with the same intelligence. To produce a good white side of bacon requires a long of certain definite peculiarities as to weight, condition and conformation."

Asiatic Yak in Alberta

Animal Imported from Central Asia by Government Officials

To the vicinity of Alberta, to mingle with the buffalo has been brought by the Canadian officials a yak from the black plateaux of Central Asia. The animal completed its seven thousand mile journey recently in good health. The yak (pooshaas Oryxionus) is a wonderfully hardy animal, usually so good a runner as the buffalo, something like our musk ox of the north. It is not subject to disease, and is a hardy animal, and domestic cattle, catfish, and buffalo new types will be evolved, and the best chosen for encouragement by the government. The yak is about the same size as Aberdeen Angus cattle, is black in color, usually, though sometimes white, and has a long, straight hair, and a hairy, horse-like tail. It is expected that it will be used for the same purposes as cattle and partly buffalo in Alberta at the Dominion government's preserve of wild animals—Francis McKie in Montreal Herald.

Accumulated Evidence Shows The Advantages Of Purebred Over Common Livestock

The Growing Child

Babies Not Expected to Grow Much During Hot Weather

The chief business of a child is to grow and learn things. At these two trades the young one grows, however, it is not expected that the adult does with his job, says Dr. W. A. Evans, in The Minneapolis Journal.

For instance, the baby has the job of increasing his weight 200 per cent in a single year—of ending the year three times as heavy as he began it. Suppose an adult had the same job. He would join a union, and the union would limit this to 25 per cent.

Or, again, there are those who say that the baby learns more the first day he lives than he ever learns in any other day, and more in the first year than ever in any other year. An adult does not learn one-fiftieth as much in a year.

All seasons of the year. I always have said that babies, and children generally, will not grow much, and should not be expected to grow much, during hot weather.

Every mother should have a growth schedule for her child, and she should try to see that the time card is lived up to at other seasons of the year except, possibly, the hot season.

It is often said that babies are not to be kept up this schedule in hot weather she will make him sick.

The mother of older children will do well to disregard the schedule in hot weather.

Two or three recent reports are particularly noteworthy. One is by Professor W. T. Porter, of Harvard University, studying the growth records of several thousand children in school children, found that the season of maximum growth was from September to January. The season of minimum gain was from February to June.

Since the schools are not in session in summer, he had no extended observations of the growth of children in New York City Gehlbach studied the growth of 600 children.

He found that the period of maximum gain began early in August, and that between that and the end of the year the children made two-thirds of the entire year's gain.

In the more than seven months between January and August 15 the seven school children gained as much as during the four and a half months of the late summer, fall and early winter.

While these observations are not wholly confirmatory of the advice, nevertheless they do not overturn it. Therefore, again, "Do not try to make your baby, or even your older children, gain much weight this summer."

Newspaper Mistakes

Errors on New York Tribune Were

Catty. In the early eighties the New York Tribune got out a political supplement in which the late syllable of Lord Macaulay's name was spelled "Tribune" instead of "Tribune." The error was corrected, and a new page stereotyped; and then he changed to the proof reader the cost of the paper that had already been printed—$125.

At another time this sentence, written by the foreign news editor, appeared at the head of a column: "In our cable dispatches heretofore given the tendencies of the Oriental press is cited." The clipping now appeared on a bulletin board, pasted in a sheet of paper on which Mr. Reid had written: "A verb should agree with its nominative in number, or there should be a disagreement between the writer and his salary. Bamboo Trees Grow Quickly

The bamboo grows at Anderson, South Carolina, are noted throughout the south. The bamboo grows at the average rate of a foot a day, and in thirty or forty days attains its full growth. Some cases have reached a height of over forty feet a circumference of 15 inches and hundred and fifty pounds in weight. The rapidly and surely growth is a great improvement to farmers for beginning bamboo groves on their lands.

Two Won And Two Lost

The Mirror ball team picked off second money at the base ball tournament at Stettler on the first of July, playing and winning two closely contested games before stacking up against the Big Valley nine. There was a good turn-out of Mirrorites to support their favorite.

In the first game Mirror and Huxley were tied in the seventh innings, Mirror manipulating to get the odd run when Kohos came through with a hit that won the game.

In the Mirror-Castor game the score was 3 to 2 in favor of Castor when Mirror went to bat in the last half of the seventh. The Mirror had two men down when Stacey made first on a wild throw, then Ray, Bissett and Heuman connected for hits that accounted for two scores.

Big Valley won their games against Erskine and Stettler by scores of 16 to 1, and 10 to 3, respectively, and were in the fettle to tackle the Mirrorites after their hard-fought battles. Mirror players were all in and the Big Valley team had a walk-away. Scores 10 to 3.

The R. A. C.

The Ripley Amusement Club held their meetings during the month of June. They also gave a box social and dance on June 2nd, 1922 at the Ripley school house, where $31.25 was taken in.

The first meeting of the sewing class was held at Mrs. S. Olsen on June 3rd, when it was decided to send away for more goods. The sewing was then carried on and before leaving Ethel Olsen served ice cream and cake.

The second meeting of the sewing class was held at Mrs. J. Brindle's on June 17th, when great plans for the future were discussed. Quite a number of useful articles were made during the afternoon. The hostess served a delicious dinner to the girls.

The last meeting was held at the school house when two new members were enrolled. It was decided to have a picnic on July 13th, next, on R. M. Herberman's place, Big Lake. Ice cream and lemonade will be served at the booth on the picnic grounds. There will be two base ball games, sports, also foot races for all ages. Prizes will be given and all are heartily welcome.

The Canadian Girls in Training of Ripley held a social gathering for the ladies of the district on Monday evening, June 26th, in the school house. As a part of the entertainment a play was given by the girls, showing the advantages of the C.G.I.T. Girl had over other girls. The two delegates, Mary Brindle and Esther Olson, who attended the C.G.I.T. conference in Edmonton in April gave reports on how their time was spent there, the former giving a short account introduction, and the latter entering more into detail and a fuller explanation. Margaret Carr acted as chairman. At the conclusion ice cream and cake were served by the girls.

A meeting was also held on the 21st of June, at the home of Mrs. R. W. Barritt, at which the main item on the program was a talk by the Hon. Irene Parry after which a dainty lunch was served by Mrs. Barritt. The meeting adjourned, the girls all thinking it a most enjoyable evening.

The next meeting was held on June 28th. The regular business was carried on after which Patsy Carter, one of the leaders, presented Miss MacFarland with a fountain pen as a farewell gift from the girls, at the same time expressing the sentiments of the girls and their regret at her departure.

Miss MacFarland, who is returning to her home in New Brunswick, has been one of the leaders since the club was organized and her help will be missed by the girls. Lunch was served.

ETHEL OLSON, Secretary.

DEAR SIR—A well-known gentleman once said:
"Oh, what some power the giftie give us
To see ourselves as others see us;
It would from many a blunder free us,

The mirror has recently been held up to the A.L.S.U.W.A. and I trust the members are satisfied as a result. We had the 'foolish notion' that we were fairly entitled; for did we not furnish the first and second Presidents for the Provincial farm women's organization, the first Provincial secretary, the first woman president of a Federal political association, the first woman cabinet minister for the province as well as members of provincial and national committees. But the Secretary-Treasurer of the Lacombe Municipality has spoken—and he ought to know!

His rule in logic that when the premises are incorrect, the conclusion is necessarily so, and the premise that the A.L.S.U.W.A. is interested in no Municipality but their own, in the light of the above, surely needs further refutation. Of course, a knowledge of the legislation for which we have agitated and some of which is written in the statute books of the province, as well as our work in action, internationally organized presupposes a higher degree of mentality than that we are inclined to digest current numbers of the Calgary Alberta; but we thought really that everybody in the Lacombe riding knew that we had a Cabinet minister among our members. If that is news to our worthy secretary perhaps he will revise his ideas of our interests being purely local.

Again, while we may be ignorant and stupid, does it not strike the reader that we should be absolutely idiotic to call upon the Government and the Municipalities Association to consider ways and means of dealing with a situation that is in our own hands? Why, if the dissatisfaction which exists were the fault of the Council, we should invade their sanctum sanctorum in a body and create such an agitation that not a single member would be returned to office—much even excepting the capable secretary.

Now this resolution as to the reduction of the expense of administration was spoken to in our Convention last winter and the first remark of the Minister of Municipal Affairs when he rose to reply was, "We are working on that very thing right now." So we were rather intelligent after all. Since then we have learned that the plan proposed will very materially reduce the cost of administration by reducing among other things office expenses, the number of Secretary-Treasurers and other officers.

As the secretary himself admitted when presenting the A.L.S.U.W.A. the taxes on sub-divisions are expensive to collect, office apparatus is also expensive while bank interest is a considerable item. These were some of the matters to which we referred, and while the unit of the Municipality is so small it is difficult to see how we can have Medical Inspection of Schools, a Public Health nurse and other health services which we need.
